

view each advisee, referring constantly to the cumulative record, to which has been added the 9B test scores. If a pupil's health record is not complete, he is sent immediately to the doctor's office, where the doctor and nurse are working. Those of the group who are not being interviewed are being given locker assignments by student aides, are buying their student handbooks and all-in-one tickets. By noon all interviews are completed, and during the afternoon the advisers will program their advisees according to the choices made in the morning.

In the afternoon, the English department conducts another lesson in composition the subject this time being An Autobiography. After group discussion, perhaps the making of a master outline, the pupils each write a theme. These are collected, later to be distributed to the English teacher of the individual pupil for correction and then filed in his cumulative file with his home room adviser.

If the school has produced a movie of its activities, it may be shown now. If not, other local situations will be developed. Student tours have not been mentioned. They can be conducted at any place in this schedule where there is extra time. If possible, keep the size of the group around a dozen, certainly not more than twenty, and have it conducted by a student aide, not by a teacher. Perhaps on this last afternoon of the Orientation Week, the home room group could get together for a few minutes in the home room, for this is where they will meet on Monday.

As the home room advisers make out the individual programs, the principal will make the necessary adjustments in the school program. He will set up extra classes, divide or combine, as numbers enrolled show the need. It may be necessary for him and the counselor to work Saturday at ironing out conflicts, but when they have finished, there will be no conflicts, no over-loads, no adjustments to be made after classes start. Student aides will copy the office copy of the programs, place them in the home room mail boxes from which they will be distributed to the 9Bs' Monday morning.

Now every 9B knows his school, all have been uniformly tested, each adviser has programmed his own advisees. After classes start, there is no transferring, no adjusting.

Doesn't it sound feasible? Think it over! Give it a trial!

Because of the complex interrelation and overlapping of the various extracurricular activities and interests, many of the articles listed here might properly have been classified under a number of headings. To have listed items more than once would have been confusing, and so they have been placed arbitrarily according to the arrangement that seems most logical. Cross references have not been made, because they would be too numerous for space available and too involved for convenient use.

Items appearing in such departments as As the Editor Sees It, News Notes, and Comedy Cues are not listed in this volume index.
